How well did your school do in science?

March 1, 2011 - 12:01 AM / Comment

Anybody remember science?

It used to be considered one of the four core subjects -- before the federal government decided to make English and math the focus of school accountability.

Ever since then, it seems, science has faded into the background. (Despite the fact that people in science-related fields seem to be in increasing demand.)

Well, here are the fourth- and eighth-grade results for state assessments in science, from 2010, for schools in the eight counties of Western New York.
